A one-day seminar from Melissa (Missy) Bradley, MS, NCC, BCETS, FAAETS, the instructor who brought you The Three Stages of Healing: Counseling Victims of Sexual Trauma

The Psychology of Resilience

*A Multi-Modal Framework for Thriving
Based on the Heroic Journey*

Inspire, Motivate and Empower Your Clients to Thrive in the Most Difficult Events

Human beings have an innate desire to make order and sense out of chaos but are often unable to do this effectively. Therapists need techniques and tools to help empower clients to overcome adversity, embrace change and thrive. For centuries, traditional storytellers, philosophers, theologians, anthropologists and sociologists have helped provide frameworks to understand and conquer life's transitions and challenges. These frameworks are used worldwide in clinical practices, schools, businesses, religious settings, communities and philosophies to promote resilience and drive individuals to thrive. Clinicians and other professionals can use these timeless concepts to help patients, clients and students manage the normal passages of life as well as overcome painful and traumatic experiences, including loss, grief, family and life transitions, crises, recovery from addiction and more.

Participants in this one-day seminar will examine the four steps universally found in great literature, spiritual texts and popular culture—known as the Heroic Journey—and learn how to utilize these concepts in a variety of client situations to help motivate and inspire. You will learn to utilize and adapt a multi-modal approach, including Cognitive-Behavioral, solution-focused, Jungian, expressive, experiential, somatic, internal resource development and narrative therapies, for most types of clients. Attendees will receive an extensive manual with worksheet masters and access to additional resources to use with the populations they serve. Participants will also be given an opportunity to reflect experientially, privately or with others, on some of the applications of this seminar and may wish to bring a journal for reflective writing. You will leave with a new set of tools to put to work immediately to enhance your therapeutic repertoire.

Course Director

MELISSA (MISSY) BRADLEY, MS, NCC, BCETS, FAAETS, is an internationally recognized educator, trainer and clinician. Ms. Bradley is the developer of the well-known seminar The Three Stages of Healing: Counseling Victims of Sexual Trauma, in which more than 40,000 clinical and legal professionals have been trained. She is a long-time EMDR-trained psychotherapist and has instructed school systems, hospitals, clinicians, law enforcement, international corporations and religious communities in empowering those they serve to become the most effective, healthy and resilient individuals they can be.

As a Fellow, Diplomat and Board Certified Expert in Traumatic Stress by the prestigious Academy of Experts in Traumatic Stress, Ms. Bradley has been a frequent guest on regional and national radio and television news programs speaking on many mental health issues. Several of the news series addressing mental health, wellness and human resources topics in which she has been significantly involved have won prestigious national and international media awards, including the Scripps Howard Award for Broadcast Excellence and the Edward R. Murrow Award.

Ms. Bradley received both a Bachelor of Music Education and Master of Counseling Psychology in Community Agency Counseling from the University of Tennessee-Knoxville. Her extensive training and years of teaching in the arts have been a powerful adjunct to her professional counseling. Among Ms. Bradley's many professional affiliations are the American Counseling Association (ACA), National Board of Certified Counselors (NBCC), Eye Movement Desensitization and Reprocessing International Association (EMDRIA) and Association for Transpersonal Psychology. For more information about Ms. Bradley, you may visit her website or contact her through www.theomnibuscenter.com.

COURSE CONTENT

BUILDING THE FOUNDATION OF CHANGE—RESILIENCE, TRANSFORMATION AND THE HEROIC JOURNEY

- ◆ Theories of transformation—Jung, Campbell, Pearson, Seligman, Pearsall, Brock and more
- ◆ Archetypes of transformation, assessments and change—identify, educate and support
- ◆ Four primary stages of the Heroic Journey—recurring themes in traditional stories, literature, spiritual texts and myths which demonstrate resilience
 - separation from the known—the call to change, grow or heal
 - into the unknown—beginning the journey toward change
 - the “initiation”—the road of trials and lessons of life challenges
 - the “return”—transformation and continued learning
- ◆ How the framework of the Heroic Journey has been used in different cultures throughout history to promote courage and facilitate change
- ◆ The innate desire for heroes—identifying and developing healthy role models
- ◆ How to utilize the natural attraction to elements of popular culture which model resilience—stories, movies, video games, music, art, etc.
- ◆ How sacred and secular rituals in a community can promote resilience during change

STAGE 1: SEPARATION FROM THE KNOWN—THE CALL TO CHANGE OR HEAL

- ◆ The transformative crisis—identifying, understanding and answering the “call to adventure”
- ◆ Dealing with resistance and refusal to change and the cognitive beliefs which sabotage resilience
- ◆ Cognitive therapy—looking at the beliefs that keep us stuck
- ◆ The emotional stages of all change—voluntary vs. involuntary change
- ◆ Dealing with the discomfort of change—somatic and emotional processing
- ◆ What’s in the backpack—identifying “tools” for the journey

STAGE 2: INTO THE UNKNOWN—BEGINNING THE JOURNEY TOWARD CHANGE

- ◆ The “sonic boom”—breaking through the barriers that keep us stuck
- ◆ Appropriate resources to use during the second stage—for clinicians and educators
 - movies and inspirational stories
 - journaling and narrative work
 - identifying life successes and the lessons that come from them
 - mindfulness, meditation, prayer, centering and other grounding practices
 - music and the arts
- ◆ The success of “failure”
- ◆ The honeymoon period of change
- ◆ Identifying and building support—mentors, teachers, clinicians and more

STAGE 3: THE INITIATION—THE ROAD OF TRIALS AND LESSONS OF LIFE CHALLENGES

- ◆ Moving beyond “the abyss” (belly of the whale time)
- ◆ Identifying and using the gifts and lessons of initiation
- ◆ Making transpersonal meaning out of life’s pain
- ◆ Keeping the courage and momentum
- ◆ Performance enhancement techniques that empower individuals to thrive
- ◆ Identifying who you are becoming

STAGE 4: THE RETURN—TRANSFORMATION AND CONTINUED LEARNING

- ◆ Returning transformed
- ◆ Sharing the gift with others
- ◆ Honoring the return—recovery of communities and individuals
- ◆ Building the future templates of strength, courage and resilience
- ◆ The continuation of the journey
- ◆ Ancora imparo— “still I am learning”

INCORPORATING THE HEROIC JOURNEY WITH DIVERSE POPULATIONS, CULTURES AND CIRCUMSTANCES

- ◆ Trauma—survivors, veterans and catastrophic events
- ◆ Addiction and recovery
- ◆ Relationship and career transitions and losses
- ◆ Loss of autonomy, aging, illness and end of life issues
- ◆ Financial crises
- ◆ Communities and businesses in crisis
