Resilience

Helping Clients Navigate the Heroic Journey to Personal Transformation

Inspire, Motivate and Empower Your Clients to Thrive in the Most Difficult Times

Human beings have an innate desire to make order and sense out of chaos but are often unable to do this effectively. The Heroic Journey is a template for describing the process of moving through challenging life events and coming through those events stronger, wiser, healthier and more resilient. This framework is often portrayed in movies and literature where the primary character, the “initiate,” is being tested with challenges beyond what he/she thinks can be overcome. The information in this seminar can be utilized with widely diverse populations since all human beings have an innate desire to make order and sense out of chaos but are often unable to do this effectively. Therapists need techniques and tools to help empower clients to overcome adversity, embrace change and thrive. The Heroic Journey is utilized worldwide to promote resilience and drive individuals to thrive. Clinicians and other professionals can use these timeless concepts to help patients, clients and students manage the normal passages of life as well as overcome painful and traumatic experiences, including loss, grief, family and life transitions, crises, financial devastation, recovery from addiction and more.

Participants in this one-day seminar will examine the four steps universally found in great literature, spiritual texts and popular culture—known as the Heroic Journey—and learn how to utilize these concepts in a variety of client situations to help motivate and inspire. Attendees will identify the eight micro-stages and focus on the developmental needs and the treatment modalities to effectively move through the stages. In addition, attendees will learn how to utilize and adapt a multi-modal approach, including Cognitive-Behavioral, solution-focused, Jungian, expressive, experiential, somatic, internal resource development and narrative therapies, for most types of clients. Participants will also be given an opportunity to reflect experientially, privately or with others, on some of the applications of this seminar and may wish to bring a journal for reflective writing. You will leave with a new set of tools to put to work immediately to enhance your therapeutic repertoire!

Course Director

MELISSA (MISSY) BRADLEY, MS, NCC, BCETS, FAAETS, is an internationally recognized educator, trainer and clinician. Ms. Bradley is the developer of the well-known seminars The Three Stages of Healing: Counseling Victims of Sexual Trauma, Counseling Those Who Serve: Working with Veterans, First-Responders and Their Families and the new program Three Stages of Healing: Trauma Conversion and Resilience in which more than 80,000 clinical and legal professionals have been trained. She is a long-time EMDR-trained psychotherapist and has instructed school systems, hospitals, clinicians, law enforcement, international corporations and religious communities in empowering those they serve to become the most effective, healthy and resilient individuals they can be. COURSE CONTENT

BUILDING THE FOUNDATION OF CHANGE—RESILIENCE, TRANSFORMATION AND THE HEROIC JOURNEY

- ◆ Theories of transformation—Jung, Campbell, Pearson, Seligman, Pearsall, Brock and more
- ◆ Archetypes of transformation, assessments and change—identify, educate and support
- ◆ Four primary stages of the Heroic Journey—recurring themes in traditional stories, literature, spiritual texts and myths which demonstrate resilience
 - separation from the known—the call to change, grow or heal
 - into the unknown—beginning the journey toward change
 - the “initiation”—the road of trials and lessons of life challenges
 - the “return”—transformation and continued learning
- ◆ How the framework of the Heroic Journey has been used in different cultures throughout history to promote courage and facilitate change
- ◆ The innate desire for heroes—identifying and developing healthy role models
- ◆ How to utilize the natural attraction to elements of popular culture which model resilience—stories, movies, video games, music, art, etc.
- ◆ How sacred and secular rituals in a community can promote resilience during change

STAGE 1: SEPARATION FROM THE KNOWN—THE CALL TO CHANGE OR HEAL

- ◆ The transformative crisis—identifying, understanding and answering “the call”
- ◆ Dealing with resistance and refusal to change and the cognitive beliefs which sabotage resilience in individuals and family or business systems
- ◆ Cognitive therapy—looking at the beliefs that keep us stuck
- ◆ Identifying the mentor voices within
- ◆ The emotional stages of all change—voluntary vs. involuntary change
- ◆ Dealing with the discomfort of change—somatic and emotional processing
- ◆ What’s in the backpack—identifying “tools” for the journey

STAGE 2: INTO THE UNKNOWN—BEGINNING THE JOURNEY TOWARD CHANGE

- ◆ The “sonic boom”—breaking through the barriers that keep us from the transformation
- ◆ Appropriate resources to use during the second stage—for clinicians and educators
 - movies and inspirational stories
 - journaling and narrative work
 - identifying life successes and the lessons that come from them
 - mindfulness, meditation, prayer, centering and other grounding practices
 - music and the arts
- ◆ The success of “failure”
- ◆ The honeymoon period of change
- ◆ Identifying and building support—mentors, teachers, clinicians and more

STAGE 3: THE INITIATION—THE ROAD OF TRIALS AND LESSONS OF LIFE CHALLENGES

- ◆ Moving through “the dark night of the soul”
- ◆ Identifying and using the gifts and lessons of initiation
- ◆ Making transpersonal meaning out of life’s pain
- ◆ Keeping the courage and momentum
- ◆ Performance enhancement techniques that empower individuals to thrive
- ◆ Identifying who you are becoming
- ◆ What “Finding Nemo” has to teach us about initiation and transformation

STAGE 4: THE RETURN—TRANSFORMATION AND CONTINUED LEARNING

- ◆ The new integrated “normal”
- ◆ Sharing the gift with others
- ◆ Honoring the return—recovery of communities and individuals
- ◆ Building the future templates of strength, courage and resilience
- ◆ The continuation of the journey
- ◆ Ancora imparo— “still I am learning”

INCORPORATING THE HEROIC JOURNEY WITH DIVERSE POPULATIONS, CULTURES AND CIRCUMSTANCES

- ◆ Trauma—survivors, veterans and catastrophic events
- ◆ Addiction and recovery
- ◆ Relationship and career transitions and losses
- ◆ Loss of autonomy, aging, illness and end of life issues
- ◆ Financial crises
- ◆ Communities and businesses in crisis
